

ABSTRACT

An apparatus includes a surface configured to enclose a first volume having an adjustable upper opening and a lower opening. The surface is coupled to a frame and both the surface and the frame are removably attachable to a court net; thereby presenting a target to a player, such that an object can be aimed by the player to enter the upper opening and pass through the lower opening. An alarm can be included to signal the presence of the object within the first volume.